UnEarth International Women in Mining Exhibition

In 2017, International Women in Mining with the support of De Beers Group of Companies held the Impact and Influence Photo Competition. Over 200 inspirational photos were received that illustrated the significant positive contributions that women are making in achieving an inclusive, thriving, safe and responsible mining industry. Building on the success of the photo competition, a select group of photos were designed into an exhibition by students at the University of Western Australia.

The UnEarth exhibition emphasises the diversity of the mining industry by recognising women from across the globe and the various roles they fill. From mining tin in dormant volcanoes to updating IT systems, and in occupations spanning electricians, engineers, draftswomen, and zoologists, each image tells a unique story of culture, experience, and impact. Despite all these differences, the photographs fit together to unearth common themes in the strength, passion, and determination of women in the industry.

The UnEarth Exhibition consists of 28 panels and 40 photos. The exhibition has been hosted at 16 venues in seven of countries with more exhibitions and tours planned. Thanks to the Australian Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade, a number of Australian diplomatic missions offered to host the exhibition. This had led to the exhibition being translated into Spanish, Korean, and Mongolian with our languages and countries still expected to host the exhibition in 2019.

Thank you to all the conference organisers, companies, Australian diplomatic missions for hosting the exhibition. But most of all thank you to women for sharing their stories.
